Ethics passed-on knowledge
Ethics is a soft-skill
Expected behaviour coded Care about security ethics training GT concept
No ethical guides
Faith sustains industry Usually Job induced caution responsibility to practice GT concept Potential for reputation ruin
Common sense codes
Methodology audit career sensitivity GT concept Fear of credentials loss
Wide scope of activities
Ethics is a passed on soft-skill that testers are obliged to pick up.
Red team impersonations red teaming GT concept
Do whatever needed
Always
Regulatory box-ticking
Impersonating and socially engineering people is part and parcel of a red team.
Lawyers focus on the proprietary
Hard to gauge new system accreditation
Expectation of high standards means falling below them could endanger career.
Doing things because they should Clients pen test new systems because they must not because they should.
Report unread
Possibly
Test contact inexperience makes service design difficult client indifference GT concept Head in sand
Inexperienced test contacts assigned when clients don't care Lack of management authority/buy-in Miscommunication increases hostility during pen tests.
Emergent engagement reshaping Perhaps test authority GT concept Complaints due to misapprehension Misunderstanding client understanding can cause communication problems service comprehension GT concept Service implication understanding
Red team communication expectations
Lack of management skills
Expected behaviour calls
Posture change warning
Maybe
Developer hostility red team / blue team conflict GT concept Told what to do